JAIL AMERICAN FOR FIRE ON LINER

BAY STATE RELATIVES DEMAND U. S. ACTION

PARIS, March 31.—Accused of attempting to blow up the French liner La Touraine, Raymond Swoboda, an alleged German spy, has been arrested in Paris and is now held in close confinement at Havre. Although the arrest was made on Sunday, it was not until today that news of it became public.

French officials declare that Swoboda's arrest will clear up the mystery of the fire on La Touraine on her recent voyage from New York to Havre.

According to officials, the fire which broke out upon La Touraine while she was on her way to this country with a big consignment of war munitions on board, originated from an explosion in the baggage of a first-class passenger. Statements attributed to Swoboda on shipboard led to his being shadowed.

HAD AMERICAN PASSPORT.

A New York dispatch says that Raymond Swoboda went to the French line office there with a letter purporting to be from the Cunard Line and got a concession to carry extra baggage, according to C. Treyeoux, general agent of the French line. Treyeoux said that he had heard that Swoboda and a broker in Paris named Morrison had been arrested, charged with setting the fire on La Touraine.

Swoboda had an American passport in his possession when he engaged passage on the Touraine. It was viewed by the

Thieves Leave Trousers and Boots Behind

Boots form a clew to one Greater Boston burglar, a section of trousers to another.

Edward C. Mayers found a stocky man collecting loot in the dining room of the Mayers house at No. 759 Highland avenue, Medford. The intruder overcame Mayers after a tussle and escaped, leaving not only his loot, but his boots as well. The boots were found on the ground outside the house.

George H. Orr, peller at No. 112 West Ninth street, South Boston, was stunned and robbed of $11 by two men while watering his horse. His bulldog "Bess" attacked the robbers and secured a section of the trousers of one of them.

Eitel Taking 1,000 Tons Coal

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 31.—An order was placed today for 1,600 tons of coal for the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich. The loading of the fuel on barges for transportation to the Prinz Eitel began at once. Naval officers asserted that this was double the amount that would be required to take the cruiser across the Atlantic.

Say Austrians Lose 18,000 in One Day

GENEVA, March 31.—Dispatches to Swiss newspapers estimate the Austrian losses in Lyutia Valley and the Province of Berog in northeast Hungary at 18,000 on March 28. One column of 4,000 Austrians is reported to have been wiped out by the Russians.

Germans Begin Bombardment of Verdun Forts

PARIS, March 31.—After seven months of continuous effort the Germans have finally got near enough to Verdun to bombard the forts defending the city.

Fort Douaumont, five miles northeast of the city proper, has been violently shelled by heavy German howitzers, a dozen projectiles striking the works. This was officially admitted today by the War Office.

Fort Douaumont is one of a group of six forts and redoubts north of the Conflans road, defending Verdun on the northeast.

Roxbury Youth Held as Bandit

Joseph C. Greenbaum, twenty, faced Judge Sisson in the Chelsea court today charged with the robbery of $55 from Samuel A. Heller, and assault with intent to kill Thomas Flynn and John P. O'Neil, policemen. He waived the pleading, but was held in $5,000 on each charge for a hearing April 7.

Greenbaum was arrested early today at his home, No. 69 Intervale street, Roxbury, and was brought to Chelsea, where he was identified as one of the six gunmen who on March 29 held up and robbed Samuel A. Heller in his store at No. 210 Chestnut street, Chelsea, and escaped after a running gunfight with the police.

Greenbaum is the second man arrested in connection with the holdup. John Power, eighteen, of No. 219 East Eagle street, East Boston, was held yesterday for a hearing April 7 for participating in the robbery.

Eills Hearing Off to April 17

TOKIO, March 31.—The opening of the hearing before the Japanese courts on the petition of Mrs. John Eills of Boston, U. S. A., for possession of her seven-year-old daughter, Olga, now in custody of her father, John Eills, was today postponed until April 17.

Mrs. Eills bases her complaint on the allegation that the father kidnaped the child after an American court had awarded the custody of Olga to the mother after the parents separated. Eills brought Olga to Japan. The mother traced them here and arrived in this city a fortnight ago. She tried to get possession of Olga, but was balked by the police when an outcry arose.

France Votes War Funds for Greece

PARIS, March 31.—The Senate has adopted a bill, which already had passed the Chamber of Deputies, providing for the advancing to Servia, Belgium, Greece and Montenegro as friends of the allies the sum of 4,000,000,000 francs ($370,000,000).

TORPEDO LINERS; 1 ESCAPES

LONDON, March 31.—The sinking of two more British steamships by German submarines and the narrow escape of a third were announced today.

The Ellerman liner Flaminian, 3,500 tons, was torpedoed and sunk off the Scilly Islands. The Glasgow steamship Crown of Castile, 4,500 tons, was reported sent to the bottom in like manner in the same vicinity.

The British steamer City of Cambridge reached Liverpool today badly damaged and reported a thrilling escape from a German submarine.

A fourth vessel, the British steamer South Pacific, 3,661 tons, was sunk off the coast of Ireland last night. Her crew were rescued and reported that she had collided with an unidentified vessel.

The Flaminian, bound from Glasgow to Cape Town, South Africa, went to the bottom on Monday, but the first news of her loss came today when her crew of thirty-nine men was landed at Holyhead. The vessel was carrying a general cargo consigned to South African purchasers when she was lost.

The sailors of the Flaminian stated after their arrival at Holyhead that their ship was torpedoed by a German submarine. The Flaminian, the third British liner sunk by the Kaiser's underwater craft within three days, was a new boat having been built at Hull in 1914. She was a steel steamer engaged in freight traffic. Sometimes she carried passengers, but is believed to have had none on board when she left Glasgow on her last trip.

It is believed here that the elusive U-28, which sank the Falaba, also sank the Flaminian.

The Flaminian had successfully navigated the Irish Sea and passed through St. George's Channel before she was attacked. The submarine torpedoed the liner about fifty miles off the Scilly Islands on Monday afternoon. The liner settled so quickly after the torpedo struck her that the sailors had barely time to take to the boats. They abandoned all

ACTION BY STATE IN CAR STRIKE

SPRINGFIELD, March 31.—State intervention was begun today to settle the strike which has tied up the Springfield Street Railway.

Under an order issued by the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation, a conference of the striking employes and of the street railway company is held this afternoon in the Kimball Hotel.

Commissioners Charles G. Wood and Frank M. Bump represent the State.

John H. Reardon, vice-president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railways Employes, represent the 800 striking carmen.

President John T. Harmer has been notified to appear in behalf of the Springfield street railway, whose service is demoralized.

"Our first effort will be to get the men back at work. Commissioner Wood announced today.

SEEK PEACE TERMS.

"We will try to reach a common level under which the differences between the men and the company can be temporarily agreed to and under which the men can work until the case is finally arbitrated."

Commissioner Wood said that in the event that a temporary agreement is reached, the State Board will immediately seek to bring about a permanent settlement of the labor troubles.

"If either the men or the company refuse to come to a final settlement, we will appoint a board of investigators to place the responsibility for the strike," declared Commissioner Wood.

"I have absolutely no knowledge of the causes of the strike, said Commissioner Wood. "We have read the newspaper reports but have received no official word from the men or from the company."

The tie-up continued complete this afternoon, with the exception of United States mail cars operated by company officials. All local service stopped. The lines of the Hartford & Springfield Street Railway Company, operating on the east and west sides of the Connecticut River to the south, came only as far as the final fare limit below this city, which are West Springfield on the west side line and

State Census Is Delayed by Court Tangle

Admitting that it will be absolutely impossible to begin tomorrow the taking of the decennial census, Director Charles F. Gettemy of the Massachusetts Census Bureau acknowledged today that the State is in the worst census tangle in its history.

More than 2,000 qualified census enumerators ready to begin work will be idle throughout the State. Supplies are still tied up at the State House. Whether the taking of the census will be begun before May 1 is problematical.

The situation is based upon the question as to whether the census can be lawfully taken under the Constitution as of April 1. There is the grave doubt that a census taken before May 1 would be illegal. The Legislature has asked the Supreme Court to decide the matter and the opinion has not been handed down. In any event, the census taking cannot be begun before Monday.

Last year the Legislature was asked to inquire the legality of the April 1 census from the Supreme Court. The order was filed by Representative McMorrow of Boston. Lieutenant-Governor Grafton D. Cushing, then chairman of the Committee on Rules, turned the matter down. Mr. McMorrow says Mr. Gettemy said the order was unnecessary, that "nobody would bother." Mr. Gettemy says it isn't so. And there you are.

"Army" Soldier a Stubborn Child

Samuel Weinberger, eighteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Weinberger of No. 72 Webster street, Somerville, who joined the Somerville Salvation Army Corps without his parents' permission, was today found guilty of being a stubborn child by Judge Wentworth in the Somerville Police Court and sentenced to a day in the House of Correction. He appealed and was held in $50, furnished by the Salvation Army officials.

It was said that this summary was entirely false.

ACCUSED AS SPY FOR TOURAINE EXPLOSION

It developed this afternoon that Leon Chester Thrasher, the first American victim of a German submarine, was a resident of Hardwick in Worcester county, and the State Department was asked today by relatives to investigate his case.

London cablegrams say that Thrasher, who was engaged in African mining, was one of the passengers who perished when the African liner Falaba was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in St. George's Channel last Sunday, 121 of the passengers and crow losing their lives. This was the first big passenger steamship torpedoed.

Austin M. Thrasher of West Springfield, brother of the missing man, has requested Congressman Frederick H. Gillett to have the Washington authorities look into the matter.

While this news was coming from West Springfield of Austin M. Thrasher's action in behalf of the family, dispatches from Washington related that the administration is much concerned over the London report of Leon Chester Thrasher's death on the Falaba on account of the complications which this might involve with Germany. Official word from Ambassador Page at Berlin was anxiously awaited.

The Washington dispatches added that diplomats believed the case, if the American engineer was among the German submarine victims, would come directly within the "strict accountability" warning given by the United States to German when the Kaiser announced the German "war zone" decree.

Leon Chester Thrasher was a native of Hardwick, and, for the past year, had been manager of the mines on the African gold coast of the Broomassi Gold Mining Company, a British corporation, with headquarters in London.

He was thirty-one years old, and, though not old as mine managers go, was widely known. Previous to going to Africa he had been employed by the United States government on engineering work. He had been in Panama and in south America.

RELATIVES IN HARDWICK.

His mother, two brothers and a sister live at the family home in Hardwick.

The mining engineer had been on a vacation to England. His mother received a letter last Friday in which he wrote that he had been visiting in England and Scotland and was about to return to Africa on the Falaba.

The report of his being among the 150 or more victims on the Falaba came in early cables today from London. The company officials in London gave out that nothing had been heard from Mr. Thrasher since the Falaba was sunk and the survivors had been landed and it was presumed that he was among the victims of the German submarine.

At the London offices of the African line, which owned the Falaba, it was learned that Leon Chester Thrasher, in filling out his embarkation paper, described himself as an American citizen, but he gave no address in this country.

REALIZE IMPORTANCE.

When these facts were cabled to Washington the importance of the case was immediately recognized.

The American note of warning to Germany, made public on February 11, contained the following paragraphs:

"If the commanders of German vessels of war should destroy on the high seas an American vessel or the lives of American citizens it would be difficult for the government of the United States to view the act in any other light than an indefensible violation of neutral rights which it would be very hard indeed to reconcile with the friendly relations now subsisting between the two governments.

"If such a deplorable situation should arise the Imperial German government can readily appreciate that the government of the United States would be constrained to hold the Imperial German government to a strict accountability for such acts of their naval authorities and to take any steps it may deem necessary to safeguard American lives and property and to secure to American citizens the full enjoyment of their accredited rights on the high seas."

The note was interpreted by international law experts to apply to Americans on British or French ships as well as those sailing under the American flag and it is believed in Washington that the administration will be compelled to raise the issue with Germany upon receipt of official confirmation of the death of Thrasher.

GERMANY WARNED FEB. 11 to RESPECT AMERICAN LIVES

If the commanders of German vessels of war should destroy on the high seas an American vessel or the lives of American citizens it would be difficult for the government of the United States to view the act in any other light than an indefensible violation of neutral rights which it would be very hard indeed to reconcile with the friendly relations now subsisting between the two governments.—From the United States note to Germany, made public February 11, on the declaration of the marine war zone.

LONDON EXPECTS SHARP U. S. ACTION ON THRASHER DEATH

LONDON, March 31.—The London press today predicted sharp United States action on the death of an American in the sinking of the steamer Falaba by a German submarine.

According to the press the Greek government also will take cognizance of the sinking of the Falaba because a citizen of Greece lost his life.

The American victim of the German sea raider was Leon Chester Thrasher, an engineer employed by the Broomassie Mines Company. He was bound for West Africa when the Falaba was sunk. It was stated at the office of the Broomassie Mines Company today that nothing had been heard from Thrasher since the Falaba was sunk and the office had abandoned hope that he was among those rescued.

The Greek citizen who perished when the Falaba was sunk was N. Antonopoulos, an Athenian merchant. His friends state that he had visited England for several months in fear to return home lest his ship be sunk, but his business affairs finally compelled him to depart.

The Daily Mail takes the lead in demanding reprisals against Germany for what the British term "the deliberate murder of inoffensive English civilians and neutrals."

"Whether the United States government does or does not demand satisfaction for this breach of international law where its subjects are concerned," says the Daily Mail, "it will not directly affect the British people. Their task is to see first that the actual murderers are sunk, then those who ordered and instigated those murders punished."

HELD FOR SETTING LA TOURAINE FIRE

French consul on February 19. In his passport Swoboda gave his address as the Manhattan Hotel, New York. At the hotel nothing was known of Swoboda. General Manager Winter of the Cunard Line said today in New York he had no knowledge of any letter written by him or any other official of his line, recommending Swoboda to the French line.

The French officials declared positively today that the big liner was set afire by a spy.

La Touraine carried a number of American nurses and doctors who were on their way to join the French Red Cross, and Swoboda is alleged to have said concerning them:

"Germany will carry out her blockade plans even outside of the British war zone. Doctors and nurses upon this ship may have work to do before reaching the war zone."

At the Hotel Majestic Swoboda registered from New York and said he was a financier. In this respect he was correct, for he is known in Parisian financial circles.

After living at the Hotel Majestic for a while Swoboda moved to the Hotel Regina, where he was arrested. The French secret service assert that they seized correspondence in German and they accuse Swoboda with having received a commission to destroy the liner. Swoboda said he was born in Fresno, Cal., thirty-five years ago, but he speaks French with a strong German accent.

Recently he visited the office of Le Figaro and offered to tour Germany and write a series of articles describing the country's internal conditions.

It is known that Swoboda was once wealthy, but he is believed to have little money now. He was married to a well-known Swiss operatic singer who is now appearing in grand opera in Geneva under the name of Florette d'Arcy.

When the war broke out the couple are said to have separated because of Swoboda's pro-German sympathies. The secret service agents have not yet concluded their investigation. They are now seeking to find whether or not Swoboda smuggled an explosive on board the ship in his baggage.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—It was stated at the German embassy today that Raymond Swoboda is not known by the embassy officials.

their belongings. After being in the small boats for many hours the Falaba's sailors were picked up by the Danish steamer Finlandia, which landed them at Holyhead. The submarine made no attempt to molest the Finlandia.

STORY OF ESCAPE.

The City of Cambridge crept into Liverpool with her battered sides and superstructure giving mute evidence of the effectiveness of the attack of the German submarine Sunday evening.

The City of Cambridge, a vessel of 2,844 tons hailing from Glasgow, attempted to run from the submarine when it was sighted, but was overtaken about forty miles from Bishop and Clerks Island off the Pembroke coast.

"What we were not sunk was almost a miracle," said Captain Fry when he landed. "The submarine tried to sink us for an hour, but we finally escaped when darkness fell.

"We first sighted the submarine when 200 feet from starboard. We made off at full speed, but the submarine fired a shell that struck us on the starboard side. It smashed three plates and penetrated the hull, making three holes.

"Finding that we could not outfoot the submarine the ship executed about in a circle, keeping in the wash of the submarine, which kept up a continual firing. Several shells struck, but failed to sink us and after an hour we escaped in the darkness.

Captain Fry declared that if his vessel had a small gun it would have been able to sink the submarine. One of the City of Cambridge's boats was missing when she arrived here several plates were missing from her side, several of her cabins were strewn with wreckage and the after deck was torn up.

REPORT STEAMER RUNS DOWN AND SINKS SUBMARINE

PARIS, March 31.—A German submarine was attacked by a French warship off Dieppe Tuesday afternoon and is believed to have been destroyed.

The French vessel pursued the submarine, shelled its periscope when it submerged itself and passed directly above the spot where the submarine had gone down. The belief that the submarine was destroyed is due to the fact that upon the surface of the water where it disappeared a large sheet of oil appeared.

The following official statement was issued at the Ministry of Marine today:

"In the afternoon of March 30 a warship of the fleet of the second light French squadron perceived a German submarine navigating on the surface off Dieppe. The warship pursued the submarine and forced it to submerge. Then it bombarded the periscope and maneuvered to approach the enemy's boat.

"The warship passed above the submarine at the moment its periscope disappeared and reported that immediately following a large spot of oil appeared at that point."

Two Killed in Zeebrugge Raid

AMSTERDAM, March 31.—A thrilling air and sea fight took place at the German naval base of Zeebrugge, Belgium, on Monday, in which two German airmen were killed. At the same time British warships fired upon German submarines which were trying to make their way from the naval base to open sea. Armed German trawlers which were planting mines were chased into Zeebrugge harbor by English men-of-war. News of the operations was received today from Sluis.

A hostile aeroplane attempted to bombard a captive German balloon, but was driven off by four German taubes. Then more hostile aeroplanes appeared and a fierce fight ensued in the skies, hundreds of shots being fired. One German aeroplane fell among the dunes and two aviators were killed. The Germans were finally driven off and the allied airmen continued scouting over the coast, although shelled continuously by hidden German batteries.

LONDON, March 31.—The Petrograd Novoe Vremya states that at the recent conference of the three Scandinavian kings at Malmoe they decided on what is termed a defensive alliance, whereby Norway and Denmark are to support Sweden if the latter is attacked by Russia; Sweden on her way are to send help to Denmark if the latter is suddenly attacked by Germany, and Sweden and Denmark are to support Norway if Russia attempts to annex Norwegian territory near the Northern ocean.

Longmeadow on the east side. The Hartford lines stopped there because those are the points for cross of the local company taking over the cars to bring them to this city.

HARVEST FOR AUTO MEN.

The same situation applied on the Springfield & Worcester line, their cars coming only as far as Brimfield.

There was no trolley service to Holyoke, but the Holyoke local line was running as usual in that city.

Auto owners reaped a harvest from motor vehicles, from two-seaters up to touring cars and motor buses went into commission, carrying people who heretofore depended on the trolley service. Auto prices ranged from a nickel up to a quarter. The average price was a dime, but chauffeurs with sufficient "nerve" did not hesitate to charge belated pedestrians twenty-five cents for distances of only a mile or mile and one-half.

The High School at Palmer is closed because many pupils are unable to reach it. Industrial plants are inconvenienced, owing to inability of operatives to get to the mills. There is perfect order.

About seventy strikers live in Palmer.

In addition to Springfield, the city of Chicopee and the towns of Palmer, Westfield, Huntington, Ware and all other places touched by the lines of the company were without trolley service to Springfield.

Everything is quiet so far and the company has made no attempt to run the cars with strike-breakers. The company officials say the service will remain at a standstill for the present.

The men seem to be unanimous in enforcing their demand that the company discharge three conductors who were discharged for alleged irregularities in handling the company's money, and also the demand for transfer registers in the cars.

Auto busses, jitney busses, electric cars, horse-drawn trucks and all sorts of vehicles were brought out this morning and pressed into service in an effort to accommodate the many thousands of citizens who live at a considerable distance from the centre of the city. Despite these makeshifts, however, over 2,000 persons had to walk to their work.

STRIKE MAY SPREAD.

The Springfield Company and the Worcester Company are under the New England Investment and Securities Company, closely allied, and are owned by about the same stockholders. The connection between the employes of the two companies is even closer and the hint of a general tie-up of trolleys in western Massachusetts and at Hartford is made by union representatives.

Affected by the strike are the following towns and cities: Springfield, Westfield, Holyoke, Chicopee, Ware, Huntington, Northampton and Suffield, Ct.

HOW TROUBLE BEGAN.

The trouble began two months ago in the discharge of three conductors charged with irregularity in handling fares. The union claimed the disputed fares were transfers which are not rung up anyway.

The men were discharged on spotter evidence, and the union claimed that with no register to check up transfers, too much responsibility is given the spotter.

Out of the discharge of these men came the demand that the company install registers for transfers as well as for cash fares. The union also demanded the reinstatement of the conductors.

FAMILIES FLEE WINTHROP FIRE

Three families were driven to the street in night clothes by a midnight fire today at Nos. 22, 24 and 26 Faun Bar avenue, which for a time threatened the entire beach district. Prompt arrival of the fire department summoned by two alarms prevented the flames from spreading to adjoining houses.

The building, a three-story, wooden structure, with an apartment on each floor, was practically destroyed. The damage, estimated by Chief Woollcott of the Winthrop Fire Department, is the contents. The building is owned by John Lilleheck, of Irwin street, Winthrop.

The blaze started, it is believed, from a defective chimney. When it was discovered it had burned through the roof. Thomas Watts, who lives in the next house, was awakened by a banging blind. When he got up to close it, he saw the flames shooting from the roof of the Irwin apartment house.

Without waiting to dress, he telephoned to fire headquarters and then ran out and awakened the three families in the burning house, by ringing the front door bells. They rushed to the street just as the first alarm detail arrived.

These tenants were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marten on the first floor, Mrs. John Collins and daughter on the second, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Bagness and their two children on the top floor.

In the high wind blowing across the beach, it was feared that the blaze would start sweeping through the wooden buildings, the length of the beach, once it well started. Chief Woollcott immediately called out the second alarm apparatus and managed to confine the fire to the one building after two hours' hard battle.

Womau Stopped Rae Tanzer from Death by Own Hand

Hunt for Mysterious Oliver Osborne Is Renewed

Rae Tanzer and the adornments that helped make Oliver Osborne "irresistible." On the right are articles from his ambitious wardrobe, which included twenty or more suits of clothes. Below are other items from the array which was found in Osborne's apartment at No. 161 East Sixtieth street, New York. The picture of Miss Tanzer is her latest pose, not published before.

NEW YORK, March 31.—That Rae Tanzer, the girl who says she was "honestly mistaken" in her identification of James W. Osborne, as her "Dear Oliver" Osborne, tried to commit suicide in the statement by Mrs Elkeles of No. 607 West 137th street, with whom the girl who sued James W. Osborne for $50,000 for breach of promise is now stopping.

Mrs. Elkeles declared, furthermore, that she personally restrained Miss Tanzer from committing suicide on Saturday night.

"She talked of nothing but suicide. 'There is nothing but the river or turn on the gas for me,' she cried. I was afraid she would asphyxiate herself, but I talked her out of it."

Confident that she is not one of the five persons whom United States District Attorney Marshall will seek to indict, Miss Tanzer, who has dropped her breach of promise suit against James W. Osborne, has prepared to leave New York at the earliest opportunity.

GORGEOUS WARDROBE.

Whether Miss Tanzer plans to desert Manhattan for all time remains to be seen. But Mrs. Elkeles, who is president of the Federation of Sisterhoods, said an effort would be made to induce Mr. Marshall to permit her to take Miss Tanzer to Atlantic City or some Jersey shore resort for a few weeks.

But the greatest mystery now is, who and where is Oliver Osborne?

The great array of apparel found in his seized trunks has renewed curiosity in his identity.

Oliver's wardrobe, disclosed when secret service agents examined the contents of the trunks they had seized, showed he was outfitted with enough to supply no less than ten Beau Brummels.

Among the contents of the trunks were three overcoats, twelve business suits, six fancy vests, twelve pairs silk socks, twenty-five pairs shoes, twenty silk shirts, thirty pairs gloves, seventy-two collars, thirty six neckties, sixty silk handkerchiefs, thirty-six coat hangers and six bottles of perfume.

"If you have any doubt that there is a real Oliver Osborne, just watch the reporters smack those trunks," said Mr. Marshall. "Then you will find in them many articles of clothing intimately described by some of the score of young women to whom Oliver was well known. I call attention to the gray suits of clothes, fur overcoat and the bamboo cane with silver trimming, so often described by Oliver's feminine friends."

Out of the fact that Miss Tanzer now says that after seeing James W. Osborne in Commissioner Houghton's private office on Thursday after the hearing she decided that she had made a mistake, many rumors grew yesterday. Miss Tanzer watched Mr. Osborne like a hawk all the time he was on the stand—sitting in the glare of a window. Here, in the commissioner's office where the light is not so bright she should get a better view of Mr. Osborne, rather mystifies Mr. Marshall.

"She has little regard for my intelligence," declared Mr. Marshall yesterday disputing this peculiarity in Miss Tanzer's statement.

"All suggestion that this affair is to be allowed to drop is false."

BREAK A CHILD'S COLD BY GIVING SYRUP OF FIGS

Cleanses the little liver and bowels and they get well quick.

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little one a mild, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

PLAN TO RAISE F-4 AT ANY COST

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Secretary Daniels of the navy declares that the department will raise the sunken submarine F-4, outside of Honolulu Harbor, at any cost, to determine the cause of her accident in order to guard against similar disasters.

Work on raising the submarine has been temporarily suspended owing to the breaking of a hawser with which the boat was being dragged toward shore.

Rear Admiral Moore reports that the submarine evidently is waterlogged and too heavy to be raised by the equipment employed by the searching fleet. This destroys any hope that might have been left of finding any of the crew of twenty-one alive.

Work on a diving tube, with which it is hoped to locate definitely the submarine, F-4, has progressed so rapidly that it is believed it may be ready for use today.

DR. BRICKLEY'S OWN STORY OF BRINGING THE 'DEAD' TO LIFE

Chief of Staff of Boston City Hospital Tells of His Remarkable Success in Wallace Case.

The remarkable story of bringing the dead back to life, after all the accepted tests failed to produce a living response, was told today by Dr. William Brickley, chief of staff of the Boston Relief Hospital, who brought back to three hours of life, the dead body of Willard C. Wallace, the Pittsburgh bank forger who had

Had the quantity of the deadly drug been just a trifle less, or could the stomach pump have been used just a few moments sooner, Wallace would be still alive. So much of the poison had been taken, however, that the three hours extra lease of life merely served to absorb more of the store of poison which had passed into the intestines before the application of the stomach pump.

BREATHED AGAIN.

"To all intents and purposes the man was dead," Dr. Brickley says in describing his fight against death. "Just at that moment Dr. Watters, the medical examiner, happened into the room. I said to him: 'This is either your case or mine, doctor, but I'd like to have one more attempt at making it mine.' He told me to go ahead, and although there had not been a perceptible heart beat for fully twenty minutes, I had an idea that I could make the man live again.

"Making an abdominal incision directly under the diaphragm large enough for the entrance of my hand, I began at once to manipulate and massage the heart.

"In a remarkably short time, there was a slight response. The organ began to function voluntarily. In half an hour it was beating with the regularity of a clock. The patient's face was suffused with color, and he was breathing.

"At intervals of every ten or fifteen minutes, it was necessary to start the heart going, but it was always a struggle against the paralyzing effects of the cyanide.

"If you compare the heart action with a clock's pendulum, you can get an idea of just what we were up against. With the massage I had the pendulum working, and there was the response of the spring back of it; but the cyanide acted as a pawl in the escapement, blocking the pendulum in its free swinging back and forth.

BEYOND RECALL.

"For three hours this encouraging condition continued. All the while we were forcing oxygen through the nose and lips, using manual respiration and the pulmotor and forcing stimulation into the stomach with a stomach tube. Finally we noticed the pulse slackening, breathing getting fainter, and then the battle was lost. At 2.15 the man was dead—this time beyond recall.

"I lost him," the doctor exclaimed, "but the thing can be done. I've had this idea in the back of my head for a long time. But in all the thousands of cases which have passed through my hands in this hospital, I never tried it before. Saving Maroney, the other prisoner who took cyanide a few weeks ago, made me more sanguine. When this case arrived this morning, I thought I could pull this man through also. Maroney got only a little bit of the stuff, though, in comparison with Wallace. Wallace was filled with it.

"If I could have had him before the poison got beyond his stomach, I could have saved him. At first I believed that if I could make him live long enough to overcome the first effects of the drug, he would live. Evidently he had taken so much cyanide that he was absorbing more of it from the intestines all the time I was working over his heart. That finally killed him.

HEART HAD STOPPED.

"If it had been a gas poisoning case, or a choking, I would have wou hands down. I might have been able to do it with a drowning, although that would have been more difficult. This man had not breathed for forty-five minutes; there had been no wrist pulse for twenty-five minutes, and no sign of a heart beat for nine minutes.

"When I first put my hand in, his heart was not beating, nor did it beat itself for two or three minutes after I commenced the massage. Then I felt it begin to respond to the gentle rhythmic pressure of my hands, and it began to beat of itself. It ran along by itself ten or fifteen minutes at a time.

"I could see it beat on the chest, in his neck, could get the pulse at the wrist, and finally way down in the foot. Complete circulation had been restored.

"This 'manual massage'—well, I put one hand inside and reached up to the diaphragm, the sheet of muscle that separates the chest from the abdomen. The heart rests on the diaphragm. I placed one hand in the abdominal cavity, and the other outside the chest wall over the heart. Then I pressed the heart between my hands gently, very gently, let me tell you—gently and rythmically.

"When I pressed the heart it caused it to contract, of course, and that sent the blood out of it, pumped it though the arteries over his body. I literally squeezed the blood from the heart and then let the organ fill again, just as it does in life.

TOO MUCH POISON.

"In two or three minutes Wallace's heart began to pick up the contraction itself, gradually becoming rythmical and finally beating apparently normally. The beat became vigorous without the massage. After that all I did was to keep it going. When the beat began to weaken we could perceive it through the weakening of the pulse. Then either I or Doctors Fraser, Burkett, Byrnes of Foley all applied the massage until the beat was normal again.

"When it resumed the heart it caused blood to become weak and irregular. The poison from his intestines was getting in its work, and about two o'clock the heart stopped and the most vigorous massage failed to effect a beat."

After the second death of the same man, the entire hospital staff was nearly dead from exhaustion and the nervous strain. The doctors had a breathless audience. Inspector Laughlin, Superintendent Henry Murray, of the Pinkerton Detective Agency; Superintendent Crowley of the Police Department, Captain Charles W. Searles, and Dr. William Dunn, the police surgeon. Of course, Wallace never regained consciousness. Ribs were broken, too, in the efforts to maintain respiration.

CURLEY ROUSES HISTORY LEADERS

Mayor Curley's order to destroy the Shirley-Eustis mansion on Shirley street because it does not conform to the modern building laws has aroused the ire and the antagonism of various historical societies.

In the Legislature, the Massachusetts Historical Society today filed a petition to preserve the historic mansion by exempting it from the provisions of the building laws. This petition is signed by James Ford Rhodes, president of the Massachusetts Historical Society; Grenville Norcross of the Bostonian Society, and by John Temple L. Jeffries, former president of the Shirley-Eustis House Association.

Mr. Jeffries said: "Having failed to turn into factory sites Boston Common, which since time immemorial has been the playground and meeting place of our citizens, His Honor the Mayor of Boston is now asserting his authority by destroying the monuments to our early heroes and benefactors. Shirley-Eustis mansion is ordered destroyed apparently because it does not conform with the present building laws."

The petition filed by the various societies would exclude the mansion from the building law until January 1, 1918, provided that it is occupied by a caretaker and assistants.

Shirley-Eustis mansion was built by William Shirley, who was Governor of Massachusetts Bay in 1741 and 1753. It was Shirley who fitted out the successful expedition against the supposedly impregnable Louisburg. George Washington visited the mansion to inform the Governor of the death of his son, who was Washington's companion and friend, in the Indian Wars. William Eustis, Governor of Massachusetts under the present Constitution in 1823, occupied the mansion, and Marquis Lafayette was one of the notable guests. It is said to be the only colonial executive mansion in existence.

Admiral Winslow's Son of 6 Drives Auto

NEWPORT, R. He is the envy of all the chauffeurs, and crowded Thames street on a busy afternoon is nothing for him to negotiate.

NEW HAVEN, March 31.—Charles Prentice Goodhue of New York, a Yale student, who has been missing since Sunday, has been found in a local hotel, an apparent victim of amnesia. He will be taken to the university hospital for treatment.

Young Athletes Climb Stone Walls and Chase Over Hills in Exciting Sport.

The first girls' hare-and-hound race in connection with school athletics in Greater Boston was held by a group of Lexington High School girls, who opened the season with an exciting two-mile chase over the hills and through the woods in the vicinity of Concord and Robinson Hill.

Miss Minnie Packard, an instructor at the school, was in charge of the run. The girls appeared in their gymnasium attire. Each of the hares was supplied with a piece of chalk to denote the direction of the run, the high wind preventing the use of paper. The start was made at the top of Robinson Hill, the hares leading off with a three-minute lapse.

Over stone walls, through swamps, up and down steep hills, the race continued, the hares not being sighted until the last moment of the contest. The hounds were obliged to trace the chalk marks made by the hares.

OPEN SEASON ON TROUT AT HAND

The open season on trout begins tomorrow.

Under the Massachusetts laws trout may be legally caught from April 1 to August 1, the principal restriction being that the trout must be at least six inches long.

According to the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners, 1915 will provide the greatest trout season in the history of the State.

"This season marks the culmination of ten years of hard work to propagate trout in Massachusetts," according to the commission's statement. "During that time countless of thousands of trout fry have been deposited in the brooks of the State. In one year alone more than 5,000,000 fry were deposited. One hatchery alone has supplied 4,000,000 eggs. In one year, and 80 per cent. of that number have been placed in the brooks as fry. Never in the history of the State have the brooks and ponds been so well supplied."

JEWETT PLAYERS' SCHOOL OF ACTING

Stimulated by the success of the Henry Jewett players this season at the Boston Opera House, Manager W. H. Macdonald has organized a school of acting which will give special courses of practical study for the stage.

"The purpose," he says, "is twofold. Firstly, it enables the Henry Jewett players to hold together those members of the company for next season who have found the greatest favor with the Boston theatre-going public, and secondly, the requests have received from amateurs and those desirous of a professional career prove beyond a doubt that there is a very real demand for a school where aspirants for the stage and persons wishing to acquire purity of English diction may be prepared under the direction of those most capable of teaching them, namely English actors and actresses who are the very eminent and successful members of their profession.

GIRL TELLS COURT OF $2,100 THEFT

Miss Gladys Elliott of Manchester, N. H., who was robbed of $2,100 in Brooklyn, while en route with her mother, Mrs. Lucina M. Elliott, to the Pacific coast, is scheduled to come into Flatbush Court today to tell the story of her loss before Magistrate Voorhees, according to dispatches from Brooklyn.

Miss Elliott reported to the police that she and her mother had been boarding at a house in Clarkson avenue for a fortnight. She discovered that someone had entered her room, she said, and taken the $2,100 from her bag.

She formed a suspicion in the case and told the police about them. A young man was questioned by the police but no formal charge was made against him.

RIPE OLIVE DAY WELL OBSERVED

Today is Ripe Olive Day from California to Maine and from the Canadian border to the Mexican line, as set aside by the people of California who are introducing the ripe olive to the people.

California is proud of its magy trees and citrus fruits, and the value of the ripe olive to the human system has never been known to Eastern people. C. S. Tenney, buyer for the S. S. Pierce Company, one of the largest distributors of the Californja ripe olive in this vicinity, said today:

"While still a comparatively little known product in this part of the country, the California ripe olive is rapidly gaining in favor. This fact is best evidenced in the steadily increasing orders that eastern distributors are placing with the western growers. And that this demand is bound to increase once the public knows more about the olive there is no doubt.

"The California ripe olive is something more than a mere relish. It is nutritious as well as appetising. It is a valuable aid to digestion. It is a necessity on every table, and it is gradually beginning to find its place on all of them.

Those fond of olives should give the California ripe olive a trial. They will find it a most agreeable surprise.

Mr. A. H. Smith, buyer for the Cobb-Bates-Yerxa Company, in speaking of Ripe Olive Day, said: "We have observed a steadily increasing demand for the California ripe olive the past few years. This demand will promptly double, once the general public is made better acquainted with the product. With its comparatively low price the California ripe olive is eventually bound to prove a popular table relish in this part of the country. And if eventually, why not now?

"A liking for this olive is easily acquired. It has a taste distinctly its own. It is truly delicious. Moreover, it is healthful—and far more healthful than the green, or Spanish, olive. The oil it contains is a wonderful aid to digestion, and the olive itself is an equally wonderful appetizer.

"The ripe olive is not a luxury. In this respect it differs from the expensive importations. It is within the reach of every pocketbook. It only needs a proper introduction to gain the favor it deserves."

John Has to Get the Janitor Out of Bed to Get Into His Flat

Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXVII.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

JOHN HAMILTON had a jolly time with Adelaide Simmons and her friends. He met them at 11 o'clock. They had a good deal to eat and drink and much merriment. It was well past 2 o'clock when the young husband emerged from the subway station at Ninety-sixth street. Would Isabel be sitting up worrying about him as she had done the first night that he had gone to the club after an absence of many months?

A change had occurred in Isabel's attitude of mind since that first evening of her loneliness. Then she had been frightened lest some accident had befallen her husband. Tonight her thoughts had a different trend. But John did not realize this.

As he reached the lower front door of the apartment house in which he lived he thrust his hand into his pocket for his keys and discovered with a shock that they were missing. As in a flash, he remembered that he had taken them from the pocket of his business suit and laid them on his chiffonier with the intention of putting them into the pocket of his dress trousers—then in his haste and nervousness had forgotten them.

There was no elevator in this house, for it was not one of the high-priced variety, and the hallboy did not remain after 10 o'clock at night. The Hamilton flat was up only one flight of stairs, but it might as well have been up ten flights for John's present predicament. Had the bedroom been at the front of the house, he might have whistled and attracted Isabel's attention. But the bedrooms were at the side of the building. There was but one thing to do—go down to the basement and call the janitor.

When a thing goes wrong, a man usually feels that he must blame somebody or something. As John Hamilton stood on the sidewalk, he reflected that it was not fair that any man should live in a house where there was no elevator and no all-night service. Why should he be so much poorer than thousands of other men? And why need Isabel be so disagreeable? But for her temper, he might now be in bed and asleep. The wind sweeping up from the river was chilly, and he shivered. If he caught his death of cold, it would be Isabel's fault.

Well, he would have to arouse the janitor, that was all there was about it.

JOHN HAS TO GET THE JANITOR OUT OF BED.

With a sensation as if he were performing some unlawful act, John went down the steps leading to the basement door. Here he lighted a match to ascertain where the bell was. But there was no bell. Obviously he would have to knock.

This he did with the handle of his cane, thereby awaking echoes in the deserted street. There was a deep silence. A block away an elevated train roared up Columbus avenue, then stillness settled down again. The incessant hum of that part of the city that never sleeps was only a background for the silence of this residential district. The quietest hour of the New York night is between two and three o'clock. Occasionally the warning note of a motor horn on Broadway was borne to his ears, followed by more silence.

But he must get into the house. Catching his breath nervously, he rapped a second time, and a second time waited. Suddenly a front window of the basement was raised, and a man's voice asked crossly: "What's the matter?"

"Oh, Cahill," John apologized, "I'm sorry to rouse you at such an ungodly hour, but," with an attempt to laugh, "I forgot my keys tonight."

"All right, sir; I'll let you in the upper door. Just sit up and I'll be there as soon as I pull on some clothes."

Cahill was not in a pleasant humor when he opened the front door and admitted the belated tenant. John's tip of a quarter elicited but a gruff acknowledgment before the recipient shuffled back to his own rooms.

Softly John climbed the stairs, and, with a sensation of keen nervousness, rang his own doorbell.

Isabel Hamilton heard the ring. She had seen John's latch keys on his chiffonier, and knew he would not be able to get in without ringing. Her anger made her glad he had forgotten them. She had returned to her bed, where she lay and nursed her grievance. She planned how she, too, would go her own way, as John went his. He had gone off without so much as bidding her good-night. Well, she did not care! She would not lie awake worrying about him!

She may not have worried about him, but she did lie awake. She was certain he was having a pleasant time somewhere. She was also sure that he expected her to be anxious about him. She would surprise him when he did come in.

At a quarter past two she put on her wrapper and went to the parlor window. Here she crouched in a great chair and watched and waited. After a while she heard a sound of footsteps in the street below. Peering between the curtains, as she had done, she remembered upon the occasion of Mrs. Simmons' call upon her, she saw John approach, then stand still, evidently thinking.

HE MEETS WITH A VERY CHILLY RESPONSE

It would have been an easy thing for her to raise the sash, call her husband's name and go down and open the front door for him. But she was very angry with him, with a cold anger that made her calm. Yet she started vividly when she heard the sound of his stick on the basement door panel. The noise might arouse all the street, and a woman might come running.

But nothing happened, except that, after what seemed an interminable time, he knocked and called. When she heard the janitor open the front door she crept back to her own room.

She let her husband ring the doorbell three times before she admitted him. John gazed at her matter-of-fact and unruffled demeanor.

"Oh," she said politely, stifling a yawn, "it is you? Have you had a pleasant time?"

"Quite pleasant," he replied awkwardly.

She started toward her bedroom, then paused with a short laugh.

"As it's two-thirty now," she remarked, "I don't think I'll bother you would have stayed if you had a very good time!"

To Be Continued.

Do You Know That—

Not to be Beaten

The uniformed soldie at an art gallery deeply impressed a party of excursionists by the ease with which he recited off the names of the best and most marble busts.

"This is Dante, and this is Lycurgus, and that one in the corner is Caligula," he explained. "The marble bust with the whiskers beard on it is Virgil—"

"Pardon me," an elderly bystander interrupted, "but you are giving our friends from the country misleading information. That whiskered person with the beard is not Virgil, but Homer. This other one is Virgil."

The soldie realized that his reputation was at stake, and turned on the meddling bystander.

"See here, Mr. Clever, you think you know it all, but you've backed the wrong hoss this time," he retorted. "I was here when the busts was made, and the sculptor—clever man, but rather too fond of his glass—got drunk one day and chiselled Homer's name on poor old Virgil's chin!"

Then the bystander gasped, and the guide went up with a bound in the general estimation.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years before putting this time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored Tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Clothes of Long Ago Hard to Find Nowadays

Dainty Irene Haisman Tells of Difficulties in Copying Mid-Victorian Costumes

Two Photographs of Charming Irene Haisman.

IRENE HAISMAN, the dainty Scotch lassie who plays the title role in "Kitty MacKay" at the Shubert Theatre, observes that it is quite easy to get fabrics which resemble the broadcloths and other materials of former days, but that it is next to impossible to procure the quality to be found in those goods of the long ago.

"Class distinctions may have had disadvantages," says Miss Haisman, "but they had advantages in that they made for quality in the genuine sense of the word. In the mid-Victorian era the poor man found it absolutely impossible to wear clothes like those of a rich man, because the prices for well woven goods of genuine material were utterly beyond him.

"Nowadays a man's wonder, dressed up, might pass for a millionaire's son, and the millionaire's son in turn might be taken for a prosperous waiter. The aim of the modern tailor has been to make all men look alike—and it has been accomplished at much loss of quality in materials.

"Once upon the time a father might pass an especially fine coat or waistcoat along to his son. It is ridiculous now to hope for anything surviving more than a season or two in men's apparel, because worth has been replaced by cheapness. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent each year for correct costuming in plays of distant periods. These costumes are supposed to stand the wear and tear of at least a season's work, and what is more important than endurance, they must needs be of fresh appearance and hold their shape. Better quality in cloth might double the life of a costume, but with the increasing rage for cheap duplication of everything that is worn, finding real quality grows more and more difficult.

"While I can, with patient search, find fair approximation in cloths, it is impossible to get correct men's hats —of another period anywhere in America. The old silk hat, for instance—the tall, original 'stovepipe' which many Americans know best, doubtless, in the pictures of Abraham Lincoln—can't be gotten this side of the Atlantic. Theatrical managers promise to give you a duplicate of the old hat, but they do not. In its original silk texture it was after all rather ornamental, notwithstanding its awkward shape—yet the hatters will not provide the old silk, but a beaver imitation which in a very few weeks looks like—and is—plain fur. Usually, for some inexplainable reason, hats furnished by a theatrical costumer of the periods are inches too large. They have to be rimmed down with paper to fit any head.

"I don't exactly know what an English gentleman of 1864 considered a fair outlay for a suit of clothes such as is worn, for instance, by Lord Inglehart in the second act of 'Kitty MacKay.' Such an outfit costs the modern producer, with certain fabrics that he has to import, about a hundred dollars."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NEVER MIND DOWRY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man twenty-two years of age, and am a salesman by trade, and daily come in contact with a great many young ladies.

Now there is one young lady that I have known for the past three years and have learned to like her; in fact, I love her more than any other girl I have met. I have had the pleasure of taking this young lady out to places of amusement and find her to be very agreeable, and seems to me she reciprocates my feelings. Although she does not allow the liberties other young ladies allow me, I respect and love her all the more.

I earn an average salary of thirty dollars a week and can support this girl in comfort. I have good prospects, as I am already a partner in the business I am connected with.

Now I am in a dilemma and don't know what to do. My folks claim that I should get a dowry, which I am positive her folks will not give. I myself do not agree with them on this point, and the consequences are that every time I go out with her an argument ensues.

Shall I give up my heart's desire and abide by the decisions of my folks? I have had all kinds of indoctrinations, but I cannot feel the same to these other girls as I do to this young lady. GERILLE.

THE "dowry" is unknown in this country, or nearly so, although it is a regular institution in France and other European lands. With your salary and your prospects, and with what you say of the girl's unaspecting refusal to permit "liberties," my advice would be—marry her and trust to time to convince your parents you have done right. Always supposing the girl will have you.

WAIT FOR LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Am twenty-three years old and on the other road to twenty-four. In my religion a girl should marry young—and my age is considered old. My folks continually nag me to marry. It seems as if anybody would do—only to marry.

I know I'm not in their way, still they do want so to get rid of me. I've had several offers of marriage, but I even couldn't make myself like the boys.

Shall I still wait for the right one? Is it true that love often comes after marriage? I'm afraid my folks will coax me into marriage with some one I don't love.

AN ONLY CHILD.

YOU are by no means "old." Stick to your determination not to marry until you find the man you love. Meanwhile, why not get a position that will render you self-supporting, and enjoy your life till the "right man comes along"?

Doubting Thomas

He wasn't what you would call a brainy boy, but he had his good points. One of them was that he understood horses. That's why he got a job on a farm when he left school.

One day the farmer gave him a book on driving, thinking it would interest him. Tommy opened it and looked at the pages.

"Huh! Thought so!" he grumbled in a snarling voice.

"What's the matter, Thomas?" asked the squire.

"Why, when I left school teacher told me I could read. I didn't believe her then, and I'm jolly well sure now that I can't."

The Maid and the Cynic

By ANN LISLE

THERE was once a girl who thought that chastity was indeed the best policy. She didn't tell the truth from any high motives. When telling it would have been of no advantage to her, she kept silent. But she made a lot of capital out of the fact that when she did talk she told facts.

Everyone said "Genevieve is so honest. She actually plays fair with all her friends. She is one of the few girls who knows how charming truth is. She is sweet and sane and honest."

That is almost everyone said this. There was a cynic who smiled and murmured something about a frontal attack being suspected to the masculine heart which was reasonably well prepared for an ambuscade.

And Genevieve hearing this sought out the cynic and told him with great play of honesty that he had guessed it and that she was honest because it paid—but that he was the first man who had suspected that she was using her honesty as a weapon. And she added that she would like to be friends with a man clever enough to read design into what passed for simple honesty.

So the cynic agreed to be friends with Genevieve—but no more. For he assured her that the only type of womanhood that could have charm for him was the elusive and mysterious. But in a harmless relation where mere friendship and no more was expected or given, he would be glad to be Genevieve's friend.

And they entered upon the friendship. And Genevieve babbled to him of how Alice Harold and Richard and Thomas were to her, and even as Thomas and Richard and Harold, he was pleased to hear of his friend's popularity and asked her out but occasionally and saw her but once or twice a month, since there were plenty of other men to keep her amused and to save her from the loneliness and ennui and boredom, which no true friend of the feminine sex was enduring.

And Genevieve, being fairly wise in her generation, began to observe that the cynic declared friend and declared never possible lover) was not treating her one whit differently than did the many friends whose regard she had always imagined might some day be translated into jealousy and so to love by the artlessly artful tales of "other men" she told.

And so Genevieve began to wonder if this collection of honest friends honestly treated was getting her anywhere—or if she was doomed, in spite of her example of masculine loyalties and friends to drift unbefriended upon the lonely shores of old-maidhood.

Honesty is the best policy, but you can play it two ways.

So suddenly she ceased telling the cynic about her friends Harold and Richard and Thomas. Nor to them did she speak of her remarkable friendship with the cynic.

And to one another said Harold and Richard and Thomas, "See! Genevieve is such a dear, she never tells a thing. She never talks about the old cynic any more. Do you think that simp, that chump, that cad could have made her cure—could he be hurting her? He's a dangerous person for a woman to know."

And the cynic began to wonder what sort of a game she could be playing with him on her honesty is the best policy plan. And if she were playing a game with him, she was honest no more, but mysterious and charming and elusive. And he might as well love her as any other woman. For it is much more painful to fancy causes for jealousy when a rival is half-guessed and imagined than when a woman tells you all about him and in the very telling takes you into her confidence and makes you feel like her grandmother or maiden aunt.

So the cynic invited Genevieve to be his love.

But Genevieve was considering proposals of marriage from Harold and Richard and Thomas—who as soon as they began to consider her in the light of a poor little thing whose heart the cynic might have broken, discovered that she had a heart and that it ought to be patched up. And she was assured with candor and honesty by Genevieve that it was not the CYNIC who had hurt her! And each had wondered if the honest little thing who had always told the truth told no more because it was he—

Man is a responsive animal—and a little silence on the part of a woman is a dangerous thing. Genevieve married Richard in the end because, as she honestly informed the others, he was by far the most eligible and suitable.

Which was true, his father had a sausage factory.

Moral—Honesty is the best policy —especially if you add the finesse of sudden, all-expressive silences.

The Laughing Jackass

Sir James Wolfe Murray, chief of the British General Staff, tells an amusing story of an irate old colonel who was bringing home from abroad two laughing jackasses. On board ship he engaged a cabin boy to attend to them. One morning the boy found that the larger of them had died in the night. In great fear he knocked at the door of the colonel's cabin.

"Hallos! What's the matter?" asked the owner of the animals.

"If you please, sir, I have come to tell you about your laughing jackasses—"

"Well, is there anything wrong with them?"

"No, sir, there is nothing wrong with 'em, but one ain't got anything to laugh at this morning, sir."

By the way, the name "Wolfe" which Sir James bears, and which has been given to many members of his family, commemorates the friendship of the famous General Wolfe of one of his ancestors who fought at Quebec.

The Stealers of Husbands

A Right-O Story, in Which the Stenographer Believes It's the Man's Fault

By DOROTHY DIX.

"IF there is one thing that gets my whole nerd of Angoras," said the Bookkeeper disgustedly, "it is to hear people talking about some woman 'stealing' a man away from his wife."

"Hear! Hear!" chied the Stenographer, pounding on her desk with the end of a lead pencil.

"And the newspapers fall for the same sort of guff," continued the Bookkeeper; "every time you read about some old rounder, with a yellow streak in him as wide as a street, deserting a fat wife and seven children for some little Fluffy Ruffles, the papers always tell how Fluffy Ruffles took the old rounder away from his wife.

"You'd think, to hear about them, that in all such cases the man was an innocent blue-eyed infant with long golden curls, who had been kidnaped by some designing female as he was playing unsuspiciously on his own doorstep and borne off against his will to a No. 2 establishment."

"It has always seemed to me," agreed the Stenographer, "that the man who had stolen from his happy home must have been guilty, at least, of contributory negligence. Anyway that precious shouldn't leave himself belong laying around loose, where he'd be a temptation to predatory ladies!"

"The very idea of a woman taking a husband away from his wife is idiotic," snorted the Bookkeeper, "the man isn't built. He goes, hoof, foot, himself. You never hear of a man being stolen from his wife by a woman who is older than the wife is, or homelier than the wife."

"No, indeed," assented the Stenographer, "the female heart burglar is invariably about from ten to fifteen years younger than the wife, and weighs about half as much. If I had a husband and a home I'd keep a pair of scales in the front hall, and I wouldn't let any female lady person in who didn't register up to 180 pounds, and whose hair and teeth didn't fill me with suspicion that they were only hers by right of purchase."

"If I were a woman," said the Bookkeeper, "I wouldn't waste any time watching other women. I'd keep my lamps glued on to my husband. I shouldn't be afraid of any woman stealing him away from me. What I should be suspicious of would be that he would bust it away himself.

"As long as a man is in love with his wife, no other woman can jimmy her way into his heart. His affections are protected by a sentiment that has got more resistance than chilled steel armor plate, and while that sentiment lasts no love thief can break through nor steal."

"Ah," sighed the Stenographer, "but the trouble with you men is that there is always a time lock on the safe in which we women put your love to keep it, and when our hour strikes, the doors unlock and there's nothing to keep away the burglars."

"You might marry a man who wasn't so terribly attractive that you'd live in continual anxiety about his getting lost, strayed or stolen," insinuated the Bookkeeper.

"Wouldn't have him," retorted the Stenographer, "half the fun of being married is having to always be Sister Annie on the lookstop, looking out for marauders and trespassers on your own bailiwick and frustrating them."

"Well, anyway," said the Bookkeeper, "it certainly does get me going to hear of some big, husky guy, fifty-five or sixty years old, who has known how to take care of himself well enough to make a wad, being taken away from his wife by some little girl young enough to be his granddaughter."

"Right-O," responded the Stenographer.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load the stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from 15 000 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the oild of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

An Easy Way to Get Fat and Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on dressing up a bundle of muscle and nerve. Gaudy rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some fool scheme of "exercising" which does not reach the cause of thinness goes unheeded. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-producing blood. This concentrated form of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh builders. Sargol contains the very elements which reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally drag the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue in the body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has begun. Pounds and pounds of new, firm flesh appear, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of Boston and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution.—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.—Advertisement.

LONDON, PARIS AND PETROGRAD ADMIT GERMAN SUCCESSES, EAST AND WEST

Teutonic Allies Invade Russian Province of Bessarabia; Victory for Turks.

LONDON, March 31.—That the fortunes of war have for the time being swung in favor of the Teutonic allies is shown by official and unofficial information received in London today. In the France, the Austro and the Turco theatres of operations reverses for the armies of the Triple Entente are reported. The zones of hostilities, together with the successes of the forces of the Teutonic allies may be summarized as follows:

1—France—The French War Office officially admits for the first time that the Germans have approached within artillery range of the forts defending Verdun. Fort Douaumont, five miles northeast of the city, has been violently shelled. The Germans have achieved this feat after seven months of steady pressure.

2—Eastern theatre of war—The Russian War Office officially admits that an Austrian force has invaded Russia from Bukowina and has pushed forward halfway to Choiin in the province of Bessarabia, driving the Russians before them; Austro-German forces operating in the Carpathian mountains have cut off the Russian forces that penetrated Hungary through Dukla Pass, according to the Austrian War Office, and have seized the Dukla roadway.

DRIVE AGAINST RUSSIANS.

The Austrians and Germans are now driving against the Russian forces on the Ondava and Laborc Rivers.

Turco theatre—Turkish troops operating against the Russians have resumed the offensive and have again invaded Russia. Fighting is now underway in Trans-Caucasia.

Reports from Petrograd say that while it is admitted at the War Office that Austrian troops have invaded the Russian province of Bessarabia and are advancing toward Cholin, a fortified town on the Dniester River, the Russian military officials professed today to feel no concern over the fact that their left wing had been pressed back about thirty-five miles.

Nevertheless the impression is gaining strength there that the strength of the Austro-German forces in Bukowina has been greatly underestimated, and that they are conducting an aggressive campaign having for its aim the flanking of the Russian armies in Galicia and cutting their lines of communication.

ESTIMATE OF INVADERS.

Dispatches received from Tarnopol today estimated the invading force of the Teutons at from 40,000 to 70,000 men, though the War Office characterizes the invaders as a detachment."

The Russian troops released by the fall of Przemysl have reached the Carpathian front and are taking active part in the operations at Uszok Pass, where the Austrians have thus far held their main positions and inflicted heavy losses upon the attacking Russians.

The following on operations in the Caucasus was issued in Petrograd today.

"There have been artillery engagements of considerable violence in the coastal districts on the Black Sea. Our troops, acting on the offensive from Bortscha and Ardanutsche, have occupied Artwin, driving the Turks southward. Our left wing on the Sarikamisch front is now engaged. On other fronts there have been unimportant artillery duels."

The announcement was the first intimation that the Russian troops in the Caucasus had suffered a reverse at the hands of the Turks. All the fighting reported in the official statement is in Russian territory.

HURL SHELLS INTO TURKISH TOWNS OVER DARDANELLES FORTS

LONDON, March 31.—Bad weather has interfered with the attack of the Russian Black Sea fleet against the Turkish forts defending the Bosphorus—the eastern gateway to Constantinople. A Petrograd dispatch received today contains the following announcement from the Russian Admiralty:

"In the morning of the 29th (Monday), our fleet approached the outer fortifications of the Bosphorus, but did not continue the bombardment begun on Sunday owing to fog, which has range finding impossible.

"One of the smaller ships of our fleet while scouting discovered a Turkish torpedo boat destroyer which had ventured from the Bosphorus under cover of the fog and exchanged shots with it. The Turkish ship turned and headed back for the entrance of the Bosphorus at full speed."

SHELL VILLAGES.

An official report from Constantinople declares that the allied fleet are bombarding villages on the Dardanelles, firing over the outer forts.

Turkish airmen, operating from the Dardanelles forts, have become more than usually active. The skill with which the aerial reconnoissances are being carried out leads to the belief that the operations are being directed by expert German aviators.

An Athens dispatch says that mine sweeping operations continue in the Dardanelles under an intermittent fire from the Turkish guns. Intelligences have been received from Andros of the movement of important contingents of the allies. They have been ordered to effect a landing at some point in Turkey unknown.

Unrest in Turkey is growing, according to reliable information, and the anxiety has certainly been increased by the damage inflicted by the Russian fleet against the Bosphorus works. According to a Petrograd dispatch the old stone bastions and new earthworks of Fort Elmas were destroyed by the 12-inch shells.

Pilots are reported to have occurred in the mosques of Stamboul when the conflagrations interrupted services by crying: "The Germans are the cause of all our misfortunes."

Many arrests were made.

AUSTRIA REPORTS RUSSIAN INVADERS OF HUNGARY CUT OFF

VIENNA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, March 31.—Russian troops who penetrated Dukla Pass and invaded Hungary are reported in dispatches received from Austrian headquarters today to have been cut off by a sudden offensive movement on the part of Austrian troops, who succeeded in recapturing their lost positions at the south end of the pass.

The advance Russian troops, who entered the Ondava and Laborc Valleys, are now attacked by other Austrian forces. The battle is being fought under severe weather conditions, heavy rain having fallen for three days.

The official dispatches state that in the Carpathian fighting the Austrian troops are "performing superhuman deeds, showing great gallantry and bravery."

"The Russians," add the dispatches, "brought up reserves, but they were unable to gain their objective, despite heavy attacks. Their attempts to press forward into Hungary have resulted in failure."

Further success for the Austrians in Bukowina were also announced today.

Police Guard Over Johnson

Mystery in Official Move

By ED. W. SMITH.

Famous Fight Referee and Ring Expert.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 21.—Jack Johnson is under a special guard today, two policemen doing duty at his house. This move on the part of the officials is not explained and none of those connected with the championship battle on Monday will say why such action was taken.

Willard declared today to a party of friends when he came down town showing much spirit and confidence that he would win the big fight. In talk he said he would almost rather die in the ring than quit loser.

"It's a chance of money with me," declared the Kansas cowboy. After this fight if I lose there can be nothing for me in the ring business. I have big family—a wife and four children awaiting in Los Angeles for me. I can't get a dollar of I lose, but can clean up a fortune if I win, through after work.

"The loser will not get even small money after this fight and I must go to work rather than humiliate myself by being laughed at as a man who could get no money in the game unless right on top or close to it. If beaten I won't consider myself even near the top therefore I must quit the ring.

"There is a fortune for the kids if I can pull it off and I mean to do it. I simply can't lose and go home to face d'Em. I would almost rather die first."

Never has a man shown more confidence than did Jess Willard as he looked over the axle sheet to see if the receipts would cover the expense.

BIG ADVANCE SALE OF SEATS.

Harry Frazee said the money already taken in would more than cover expenses and predicted a wild rush during the last two days, especially for the cheaper seats. The most expensive ones are gone now.

The fight seems an assured success. It is predicted as big a crowd in numbers as ever attended a fight anywhere will be on hand.

Willard did not work yesterday. He visited friends and listened to a big band concert on the Prado and took a long automobile ride. He never looked so well.

Johnson said today that he would enter the ring weighing between 222 and 225 pounds. He will be bigger than ever before, for Jack admits "Paying too big a waistline, but claims he is in as good condition as he was in the Jeffries fight.

To the critical eye it does not seem possible for him to hold a hot pace for an hour or more under a hot sun. There are two rolls of flesh over the hip bones that were never there before when he trained hard.

JOHNSON UNDER GUARD.

It seems impossible to remove them. Johnson has worked desperately, but it was no use. The "Bl Sgmoke" denies there is any inside rat that went come off. He says he eats everything he wants and has great speed, but critics doubt his staying qualities.

The story that Johnson trained secretly with McVey was denied by him. Others claim they boxed ten or eleven rounds daily on the roof of a house early in the morning without the knowledge of the rest of the camp. The story has shortened the betting odds some.

Several critics today came out flatfooted with the statement that if Johnson can win he is the athletic marvel of any age. I feel that way myself if the fight does any distance, say twelve or fifteen rounds.

The government has ordered three platoons of cavalry to Oriental Park Monday to preserve order and keep the crowd back.

Johnson's wife has a ringside seat.

CHICKEN AND BEER FOR JACK JOHNSON'S BIRTHDAY DINNER

Johnson will celebrate his birthday anniversary by sparring a full twelve rounds, doing a lot of road work, shadow boxing and other indoor work. He says he will be thirty-eight and the oldest man ever to hold a heavyweight championship.

"I will celebrate," he said, "by working out and then having a big chicken dinner with biscuits I'm going to make myself, and maybe a bucket of beer."

JOHNSON HAS $10,000 TO BET ON HIMSELF, BUT WANTS 2-1 ODDS

By FRANK G. MENKE.

HAVANA, March 21.—Jack Johnson today declared he had $10,000 ready to bet on himself if he could secure odds of 1 to 2 or 3 to 4. He asserted that the prevailing odds were unfair because Jesse Willard has the edge on him in size, age and reach.

The general opinion here is that Johnson will win unless the fight goes more than twenty rounds. In that case the negro's age will count against him and in favor of the younger white challenger.

The fight promoters are making an organized campaign to stimulate interest in the battle and their efforts are making for success, though as yet the public is not engaging in any wild scramble for the seats that range in prices from $2 to $25.

The Cubans know a lot about baseball and bull fighting. They pay out real money and pay it out freely to see such affairs. But they don't know much about the pugilistic game.

It is something new for them and they aren't quite sure that they are going to get their money's worth if they go to see the Johnson-Willard match.

One thing is certain, and that is that unless the incoming Americans grab off the bulk of the high-priced seats there will be a lot of unsold high-priced seats when the fight begins.

The average Cuban might be influenced to loosen up to the extent of $2 or $3 to see the fight, but he won't go farther.

Of course the high officials of the Cuban government and some of the millionaire Cubans will occupy the high-priced seats, but their numbers are small—probably 500 at the outside.

The promoters of the fracas asserted that the gate receipts will exceed those of the Johnson-Jeffries fight. The Johnson-Jeffries receipts totalled around $227,000.

The receipts for this fight, according to present indications, will not go above $150,000 and probably will not total much over $100,000. They will be much less if it should rain or become cold the day of the fight.

The meeting capacity of Oriental Race Track, where the fight is to be staged, is shrouded in mystery—and in contradictions. The statements of the various men connected with the bout vary widely as to what the capacity really is.

"We can accommodate from 60,000 to 100,000," said Dick Kleyin, managing director of the fight.

"We'll have accommodations for about 25,000," said Jack Curley, promoter-in-chief.

"The seating capacity of the park is 19,000," said Tom Jones, manager for Willard.

"There are 10,000 unreserved and 16,500 reserved seats at the park," said E. A. Rosenthal, secretary for the syndicate promoting the fight.

On the basis of 10,000 standing room tickets at $2 each and 15,000 to 20,000 seats at an average price of $8 it will be seen that if the park is crowded to its fullest capacity the total receipts will not go much over $150,000.

ARENA TEAM WINS CITY HOCKEY TITLE

The Arena Hockey Club today laid claim to the national ice championship as the result of its 4 to 2 victory over the B. A. A. in the deciding game of the City title series at the Arena.

The Unicorn lost considerable strength through the absence of Captain Freddy Huntington, who was unable to play because of the severe shaking up which he received in the sixth game last Saturday night.

Only the sensational work of "Ollie" Chadwick in the B. A. A. net kept the score down, for he turned away no less than thirty shots, most of these coming from the stick of "Raymie" Skilton.

Then again, the fine defensive work of Small, Skilton and Gaudet was alone responsible for staving off what looked like sure scores by the B. A. A. "Traf" Hicks and Forrest Osgood formed as neat a team as has been seen on the local rink for some time, and that they scored only twice was not fault of theirs. They made many well-meant stabs at the Arena net, but the alertness of the rink defence was the combination that beat them.

Playing his usual heady game, Patsy Sequin was the star of the final contest. His shot three of his team's goals and was always where he was most needed. The other Arena score was made by "Pop" Conley, who played a neat game in picking the puck away from his opponents.

A Pugilistic Bradstreet

Mike Gibbons Keeps It and He Tells How and Why

The Secret of His Success

IN a remarkable series of stories on his style of fighting, his methods in the ring, his training, his weighing, his systematic compilation of his opponents' merits and demerits, how he beat 'em, what he thinks of all the other middleweights, Mike Gibbons, regarded generally as the real boxing marvel of the age, will tell Boston AMERICAN readers some of the most interesting facts ever put before fight fans.

This is actually Mike's own story—not a history of his career, and not a dry discussion of the boxing situation—and is intensely interesting because it is something never before attempted by a boxer—an expose of inside stuff that tells "Why I Am a Success," and the real reasons for his being called "The Phantom."

The series will begin tomorrow. Don't fail to get the first installment.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 21.—In a biting wind Holy Cross took a 10-inning battle from St. John's, 4 to 3. Hastings held St John's well under control until the seventh, when two runs were scored on a home run, a single and an error. Daley got a triple in the tenth and scored on Long's single.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were stronger at the opening and standard issues had a better tone. The rise in Boston & Maine was the feature of the Boston market. It opened at 54, and rose after reflecting sold up to 55. Better prospects for reorganizing the road contributed to the advance. It is expected in copper circles that consumers will have to pay 18 cents a pound for electrolytic, but it is denied that any was disposed of yesterday at quite so high a figure.

Early gains in Boston included Alaska Gold 3 points at 24¾, Boston & Maine 4⅜ at 54½, Butte & Superior ¼ at 49, Copper Range ⅜ at 45¾, New Haven ¼ at 59¾, and North Butte ⅜ at 27⅝.

The New York market had a steadier tone at the start. Gains at the end of a half-hour included General Motors ¼ at 127, Mackay Com. ¼ at 8⅝, National Lead ¼ at 63¾, Goodrich ⅝ at 43⅜, Rock Island ⅝ at 24, American Can ¼ at 34⅜, Reading ¼ at 146¾, Union Pacific ⅛ at 125⅜, New York Central ¼ at 85¾, Northwestern Pacific ¼ at 113, Baltimore & Ohio ⅛ at 83⅛, Amalgamated ⅛ at 63⅜, and Utah Copper ⅛ at 47¾. Steel was unchanged, and Bethlehem was off ⅛ at 37⅝.

When the New York cotton market opened prices were 4 to 7 points higher. At the Chicago Board of Trade, which will be closed on Good Friday, May wheat opened at an advance of 1⅜c at 154¼, indicating what traders think the favorable prospects of opening the Dardanelles for Russian wheat. American stocks were lower on the London Exchange.

FRENCH LOAN ARRANGEMENT.

J. P. Morgan & Co., the National City and the First National Banks of New York have made arrangements to offer in America the issue of French 5 per cent. French treasury bonds to a total amount of $50,000,000, it is understood, and the proceeds thus raised will be expended in buying supplies in this country. Within 10 days there will be a statement as to what has been done to establish British government credit to the amount, it is estimated, of $100,000,000. The French bonds will be offered at 93½ and interest, the latter to be paid semi-annually. The bonds will be retired April 1, 1916, in New York, in dollars or in Paris at the rate of 5.18 1-18 francs, at the option of the holder. Meanwhile there is great interest in financial circles as to the action Secretary of State Bryan will exercise in announcements that attitude the United States government will take in regard to loans and credits allowed in this country to European nations now engaged in war.

LIQUIDATION BY FOREIGNERS.

The stock market advance of securities of corporations benefiting most in trade by the war indicates plainly what a tremendous foreign business opportunity we are doing directly or indirectly. The increase in bank clearings reports has enabled it to take back American stocks held by Europeans to a vast total. It is offered that the bulk of the absorption amounts to not far from $1,000,000,000. Only a comparatively fifth of foreign holdings, according to as accurate calculations as are possible, remain to be sold. But this long enough, this country may have to take back all of great amount of its securities held abroad. But it also looks as if foreign demand for our goods would be on an adequate offset. Foreign liquidation has not been sufficient so far to prevent no advance in the prices of American stocks at home.

BIG DEMAND FOR STOCKS.

The demand for stocks within ten days or so has been a great surprise to many astute observers of market movements. Profit-taking has not caused the reaction which is said to be warranted. The technical position of many of the industrials which have soared the highest has not been a potent factor as yet in the market of specialties at present, and were rallroads stronger as a class it would give bulls more satisfaction. One thing which is helping to sustain prices is the extent of liquidation before the rise began. Doubt as to how long the advance will continue is demonstrated by the disposition to take small profits, and to sell them quickly.

Rheumatism? Here Are Some Real Facts

How to Overcome the Torture Without Harmful Drugs.

A legion of people have used S. S. S. and have overcome the worst forms of rheumatism.

This disease of the blood is little understood because of its strange symptoms, scarcely two people having it exactly alike. And yet under what form or how painful and distressing, S. S. S. seems to have almost a divine influence in driving it out, relieving the terrible pain and clearing the joints and muscles so they work without restraint. The best explanation for this happy result is the fact that in S. S. S. are certain ingredients which act as an antidote. They are nature's providence to man.

Just as the meats, fats, salts and sugars of our daily food provide us with nourishment, so does S. S. S. give to the blood just the exact medicinal requirement to clear the stream, drive out impurities and reconstruct the body if destructive germs have gained a foothold. Go to any drug store today and get a bottle of S. S. S. It will do you good. But be sure to refuse any and all substitutes. And if yours is a stubborn case, write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 109 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. The latest sentiment is prevailing by a physician proud of his name by virtue of his distinguished family and a foremost doctor on his own merits.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Department of Commerce and Labor has issued a report showing $22,000,000 worth of American motor vehicles have been sold to foreign buyers identified up to date. This places the motor vehicle as fifth in the list of exports in the war zone trade, the other exports being arms, ammunition, steel, iron, textiles and foodstuffs.

The bulk of the automobiles exported are trucks, and since the battle front will be found trucks of American manufacture.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Bay State Automobile Association yesterday the announcement was made by Russell Green, chairman of the entertainment committee, that the regular monthly entertainment of the club for April would take place Tuesday evening, the 13th.

It will be an informal smoker along novel lines, beginning at 8 o'clock. Mayor Curley, Governor-elect Galliven and others will make brief addresses and vaudeville numbers will be scattered in.

James T. Sullivan, chairman of the legislative committee of the association, reported that no adverse motor bills had been passed this session. Chairman J. L. Hamilton of the membership committee announced that with 30 new members admitted yesterday there was a member for each day of the year—366, of whom 225 have joined since January 1.

FIFTY candidates for the Arlington High baseball team have reported to Coach Fred O'Brien. They were put through a long period of "skull practice" and then had a few innings of baseball on the Spy Pond athletic field. Many veterans are numbered among the candidates and Coach O'Brien looks for the team to turn out a winning line up.

THE first game for the Beverly High nine on its new $40,000 field will be played on April 17, when Everett High will be its opponents. Coach O'Donnell has 15 candidates out for the diverlet yesterday.

* * *

THE eight-oared shell race between Stone School and Cascadilla is to be held at Ithaca on May 22, according to an official announcement made yesterday.

* * *

THE Concord High boys will open their baseball season on Saturday, when they line up against the Watertown High team at Watertown. Manager Boyce also announced that Concord would play the Tufts freshman nine on next Monday.

A SUBURBAN League track meet may possibly be held this year on June 12, at Tufts field, under the direction of the Somerville High School league. The technical point set in baseball last year prevented a meet from being held, but the large number of athletes who competed this Winter have all announced a willingness to participate in a meet.

THIS afternoon South Boston High will have its second game of the season when the team meets the Boston College nine on the B. C. athletic playground, South Boston. Conners probably will do the pitching for the Peninsula boys.

* * *

WHILE other school coaches are looking blind for good pitching material, Coach O'Brien has fifteen husky youngsters who want to be slabmen. Out of the bunch Whalen, who was a sensation last season, looks the best so far.

IN an effort to arrange a game with Exeter for the coming season, Coach Lincoln of Bridge Field paid a visit to Coach Carney of the former academy. The latter coach would not consent, however, and another try may be made later.

MANAGER FORGAYS has announced the schedule which the Tufts College freshman nine for the coming season as follows:

April 10, Brookline High; April 19, Brookline High; April 24, Boston College; April 26, Boston College; April 28, Natick High at Natick; April 30, Boston University at Boston; May 1, Worcester High at Worcester; May 3, Worcester High at Worcester; May 5, Boston High at Dorchester; May 10, Lynn Classical at Lynn; May 12, Lowell High at Lowell; May 19, Worcester Academy at Worcester; May 26, Lowell High at Medford.

IT looks as though the English high relay team will not compete in the Penn carnival, this year at any rate. Coach Jack Ryder has positively stated that their decision in the matter was final and that the Bay State athletes would have to be away from home over night they cannot take part in any events. Coach Ryder of Blue had also been invited to take part in games at Bronx and Dartmouth, but these, too, were cancelled.

60 AND 62 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MARCH 31, 1915.

What Do You Know About Ripe Olives?

If You Know Little or Nothing, It Is Time to Be Better Acquainted, for This Is RIPE OLIVE DAY.

When you go to California, you will see the really beautiful Promised Land.

You will see the country where the sun always shines, where it is not cold in Winter or too warm in Summer. You will see beautiful hills, cultivated to the top.

You will see the orchards of fruit, peaches, oranges, lemons, pears, grape fruit, apples, plums, cherries and apricots.

You will see the beautiful groves of live oak, green all the year around, of gigantic size. You will see the long, straight rows of eucalyptus trees.

AND YOU WILL SEE ALONG THE HILLS TERRACED AND PERFECTLY CULTIVATED, OR GROWING IN THE ALLEYS, LONG PATCHES OF GRAY GREEN—THOSE ARE THE OLIVE TREES THAT MEAN SO MUCH TO THE WEALTH AND THE HEALTH OF THIS COUNTRY AND OF OTHER LANDS.

Old is the olive tree, and great is its value to the human race.

The ancients felt themselves ready for travel and other emergencies as long as they had not "lost their oil cans."

The people of the United States would have better health as a whole if they appreciated as did the ancients the value of the wonderful olive oil, and of the olives themselves.

Except in California, the average American looks upon the olive as a small or large green thing which he can learn to like with a little patience, and which he nibbles industriously at "banquets" while waiting for something else to be put upon the table.

Not one in ten thousand knows or thinks of the great value of the olive, and few even know that there exists such a thing as THE RIPE OLIVE, entirely different in flavor and value from the green olive of the little bottle and the public banquet.

There is as much difference between a ripe and a green olive as there is between a ripe and a green apple.

The olive is such a wonderful product of nature that it is good always, green or ripe, raw or cooked, eaten natural as it grows, or pressed into oil.

But THE RIPE OLIVE is the best, the most highly developed, the most finished product of the olive tree, and perhaps of all trees.

And the people of California have set aside this day—March 31st—as the day upon which human beings in general are to be taught if possible THE VALUE OF THE RIPE OLIVE, AND THE PART THAT IT OUGHT TO PLAY IN THE DIET OF THE HUMAN RACE.

The way to attract attention in this country is TO TALK ABOUT THE THING THAT INTERESTS YOU.

This and the other Hearst newspapers throughout the country are interested in promoting the welfare of those who grow the olives, and even more in the welfare of those that ought to be eating ripe olives as a regular part of their diet—hence this article.

If you want to give your friends a pleasant surprise for which they will thank you, and give to your dinner a peculiar character of its own—American housewives are always striving for that—tell your grocer to give you some ripe olives, or to get them for you if he hasn't them in stock. He will have them before long, for everybody will ask for them once they are known.

In Nature that is best which is RIPE. The ripe olive is as far superior to the green as the thoroughly mature man is superior to the college boy rah-rahing, or the full grown beef to the feeble little calf with its white meat.

The ripe olive, dark in color, almost black, contains fully developed and with a most agreeable flavor the oil which is without question one of the most valuable foods that the earth produces.

For human beings of every age these ripe olives constitute an excellent, wholesome and highly agreeable food.

They can be bought in quantities at very reasonable prices, and merchants should make a point of the reasonableness in price.

They ought to be sold, and we hope that they will be sold widely in cans containing half a gallon or more. They are grown in California in vast quantities. They may always be at hand, without the trouble of cooking or preparation.

They should be used as a FRESH VEGETABLE in all months of the year.

The richness of oil which these olives contain lubricates the digestive tract and promotes digestion and good health in the best sense of the word.

Millions of little boys and girls might escape the horror of periodical castor oil—worse than death in the childish mind—if ripe olives are kept on the table and the children taught to eat them as a regular part of their diet.

As for the man who has grown up without knowing anything about ripe olives, let him not call himself an epicure, or one really acquainted with the good things of the world.

The Californian, who do things systematically and concentrate their energies on one thing at one time, have done extremely well to establish this ripe olive day, devoting one day to the task of making the United States acquainted with one of the finest products of the United States.

You will co-operate with your fellow citizens in useful work if you will ask your grocer to keep ripe olives displayed, tell his customers about them, and let the people know what they are.

Man was made to cultivate this globe fully, developing everything good on it. And he can only reach his highest development and normal state when he uses in his diet ALL of the best and highest products of the earth.

AND THE RIPE OLIVE STANDS HIGH AMONG THEM.

Try it TODAY. If you can't find the ripe olives in one place, get them in another.

We shall ask our business office and our reporters to interest themselves in the ripe olive day by urging merchants with whom they come in contact to procure the ripe olives, display them, and above all sell them at as reasonable a profit as possible.

You will doubtless find in many stores today the ripe olives exhibited. For this editorial will be sent to the owners of the stores before it is published in this paper, that they may be prepared for the demand which YOU, THE READERS, will create.

Your doctor will tell you that in diet the great thing is to keep out of a rut. The system tires of one thing day in and day out.

The nerves crave new FLAVORS, the most widely varied diet.

ADD THE RIPE OLIVES TO YOUR DIET FROM THIS DAY ON, AND YOU WILL BE GRATEFUL TO THE CALIFORNIANS WHO GROW THEM, AND IN WHOSE INTEREST WE MAKE THIS APPEAL.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Declares Self-Control to Be the Greatest Asset

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

"My Dear Madame:

"An article on Self Control with a few lines in verse that might be committed to memory would be of incalculable value to our girls and particularly to our young men, who so often commit deeds that can never be undone because of lack of this virtue. A MOTHER."

SELF-CONTROL is the quality most needed in human nature today, and the one most rarely found.

Just in the degree that a human being develops the power of self-control he approaches divine power.

Just in the degree that a human being is self-indulgent, so he wanders away from the divinity which is within himself and from every high attainment that is worth while.

Self-control means the conservation of all the powers of mind and brain and body, and the ability to use those powers successfully for any high purpose.

Self-indulgence means the scattering of all these forces and their ultimate destruction.

Self-control should be taught first in the cradle and in the nursery. Instead, parents, nurses, governesses and teachers usually find it less taxing to encourage their charges in self-indulgence than to teach them self-control. The child who screams for his bonbons or his toys can be taught self-control by being left alone until he wears out his mood, and later can be reasoned with and made to understand the benefit which will result from self-control. But such guidance and teaching are taxing to the elders, and therefore the majority of children grow to adolescence and maturity without having been so taught.

One possessed of powers of observation and who has made any study of human nature must wonder that so many decent human beings exist in the world with so little assistance and guidance in the direction of self-control during early youth.

The control of the appetite in childhood and early youth is the first step toward self-control; the control of the mind in the habit of study is the next step; to thoroughly master one lesson before another is begun, no matter how long the time given to the attainment of this end, is of the utmost importance in the shaping of a child's character. But how many parents and how many teachers direct their energies to this end.

Our schools destroy the powers of concentration and lead away from self-control. Children enter our kindergartens almost invariably possessed of wonderful powers of concentration. They leave high school with very little of this quality remaining. The Bible tells us that "he who overcometh himself is greater than he who taketh a city." The greatest rewards are promised to those who overcome.

Self-control in its fullest sense means the overcoming of all that is weak and ignoble in their nature and the development of all that is highest and best. It is never too late to begin the attainment of self-control.

THE mighty forces of mysterious space
Are one by one subdued by lordly man.
The awful lightnings that for eons ran
Their devastating and untrammeled race
Now bear his messages from place to place
Like carrier doves. The winds lead on his van;
The lawless elements no longer can
Resist his strength, but yield with sullen grace.

His bold feet, scaling heights before untrod—
Light, darkness, air and water, heat and cold—
He bids go forth and bring him power and pelf.
And yet, though ruler, king and demi-god,
He walks with his fierce passions uncontrolled,
The conqueror of all things, save himself.

That Hampden Railroad Gold Brick Should Not Be Dumped on the Boston & Maine

Mr. Joseph B. Eastman of the Public Service Commission protested to the Legislative Committee on Railroads against the attempt to foist upon the poor old Boston & Maine Railroad the notorious Hampden Railroad gold brick.

Those who improperly, imprudently or for worse reasons have the Hampden Railroad on their hands, failed to unload it by last year's Legislature upon somebody else. This year they are attempting to attach it as a rider upon the Boston & Maine reorganization plan. Against this scheme, Mr. Eastman has wisely protested in language which every citizen ought to read and consider.

The AMERICAN quotes part of Mr. Eastman's statement:

"The Boston & Maine is sick, overburdened and in a desperate situation. You should not impose any unnecessary and additional burden upon it. You ought to make no special provision for the Hampden unless you are convinced by substantial evidence that the Hampden should be included in the reorganization from a practical railroad standpoint, and that it would be profitable and advantageous to the Boston & Maine. I do NOT believe that evidence has been presented.

"But two reasons have been presented to include the Hampden. The first is that certain savings banks have unfortunately invested in the Hampden securities and that a moral obligation rests upon the Boston & Maine to operate the road and make those notes good. I don't believe that any moral obligation rests upon the Boston & Maine. The railroad that the Boston & Maine agreed to operate and the railroad that was finally completed were two very different railroads.

"I have very little sympathy with the banks that took the notes before the Hampden actually became a railroad and before its locations or its lease to the Boston & Maine was approved by the Public Service Commission, as is necessary under the law. As a matter of fact, approval has never been given in either instance. This will teach the banks a lesson not to be beguiled by the siren tones of such institutions as the Hampden.

"The second reason is that a suit is now pending between the Boston & Maine and the Hampden. What of it? Let the matter be fought out in the courts. We should not appear to sanction the lease while the question is still a court issue."

Bear it in mind that this Hampden Railroad was built with no understandable purpose except to create a device against which enormous sums of money could be improperly charged; that it was built on a route which never had any legal authorization; that it was built on a fraud both upon the Railroad Commission which approved of it and on the communities which urged it in the belief that it was going where it was represented to go, but where it was never intended to go and where it did not go; that its builders appeared to seek out all the hills they could find to cut down and valleys to fill up; and that in the end the sponsors for this monstrosity, which is only a few streaks of rust without equipment, without cars, engines, stations and without any paraphernalia of a railroad, seek to palm it off, at a cost three times greater than the average cost per mile of a fully equipped railroad with cars, engines, stations, sidings and all the equipment of a railroad, upon the unfortunate Boston & Maine, which its president has publicly declared to be bankrupt.

A fine scheme indeed.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

When You Drop In in the Middle of a Picture

I SAW a handsome actor in a movie
Hail a lady on a balcony above,
And the maiden's rapt expression seemed to me a frank confession
Of the most intensive form of tropic love.
I thought I read upon her lips her answer,
I fancied that she said she'd be his wife;
But I found I hadn't got her, for they cut in with this motter:

"MARRY SUCH A SIMP AS YOU? NOT ON YOUR LIFE!"

I SAW a man I took to be a villain
Sneak up behind a small defenceless boy.
Every evil-leering feature of the ill-conditioned creature
Seemed to gleam with a debased and knavish joy.
"He intends to hold the youngster for a ransom,"
I remarked, "this hateful deed is often done."
Then upon the screen there fluttered this brief speech the old man uttered:

"AH! MY SON! I'VE FOUND MY LITTLE, LONG LOST SON!"

I SAW a haughty judge who sternly glowered
Upon a cringing person at the bar,
Who looked droopy, pale and wilty, and, in fact, extremely guilty
As the people in such places often are.
I thought "This man is going to get the limit,
They'll soak him with the law's extreme extent."
So I had a real sensation when they cut in this quotation:

"I DISCHARGE THIS NOBLE BOY! HE'S INNOCENT!"

Simple Enough Now

Bright Child

"Quit your kidding," said the little Tumulty girl to President Wilson, whose recent remarks she must have been studying with great care.
